All Near Kirkland Washington

Every Year I plan to walk the Quad between the end of March and the first weeks of April to see the breathtaking Cherry Blossoms. My son, Jake attended University of Washington for his Undergraduate Degree, his first year was my first year seeing the Cherry Blossoms. That was 10 years ago, and I am still awed by them every year. This year was the amazing.

The cherry blossoms at the University of Washington (UW) are a stunning sight! The iconic Yoshino cherry trees are located in the Quad, and they bloom every spring, attracting thousands of visitors. These trees are approximately 90 years old and were originally planted in the Washington Park Arboretum before being transplanted to their current location in 1962.

The bloom season typically lasts for about two weeks, and the university provides updates on the blossoms' progress. You can track the “Cherry Blossom Watch” at <https://www.washington.edu/cherryblossoms>. The University district also hosts a Cherry Blossom Festival featuring cherry blossom themed food, drink and retail experiences with over 80 participating businesses, which gives me another reason to spend a glorious afternoon surrounded by the Cherry blossoms. Have you had the chance to see them in person? They're truly breathtaking! 🌸

Enjoy our developing Spring. Remember me for any Real Estate needs, I would love to re-connect and work together. See you in and around, cheers, Denise
